

International Social Theory Consortium

Fourth Annual Conference

May 18-21, 2003

Hilton Tampa Bay/North Redington Beach Resort

Call for Papers

The purpose of the International Social Theory Consortium and its annual conference is to organize the International Social Theory community and to provide an opportunity for interdisciplinary exchange in social theory. This call for papers is addressed to scholars, faculty, and students who work in any of the areas and traditions and social and political thought with an interest in communicating with other social theorists. As this conference is in Florida, we are especially interested in papers that deal with the theme of the conference, Social Theory in the World and Worlds of Social Theory, which is designed to focus on questions about the differences between traditions in social theory, such as between Europe and the United States, as well as differences in conditions under which social theory is produced and consumed between different regions of the world. Conference organizers invite submission of abstracts for papers of 150 words as well as proposals for panels and sessions that address the concerns of the social theory community. The meeting is open to anyone with an interest in social theory, and in the past participants have come from programs all across the humanities, arts, and social sciences, theology, history, law, and philosophy, as well as architecture, business, and public policy.

Please send abstracts or queries by January 31 to the Center for Social and Political Thought,
Department of Philosophy,
University of South Florida,
